Eastern Nazarene College
23 East Elm Avenue
Quincy, Massachusetts 02170

www.enc.edu

In New England stands a college,

Near blue Quincy Bay,

ENC our Alma Mater

Glorious for aye.

Laud her merits, sing her praises,
Let our song ring free.
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater.
Hail, O ENC.

Graceful branches lifted heavenward,

Suncrowned 'fore our view,

Stand the elms upon our campus,

Reaching to the blue.

Shady walks beneath the foliage,

Flow'ring beauty rare;

Blessed by nature, how we love thee,

Alma Mater fair.

Clear her vision, high her purpose,
Lo, she stands serene;
And her faith is sure, undaunted,
Eastern Nazarene.
We will prove our strong devotion,
Loyal we will be;
True to God and Alma Mater,
True to ENC.

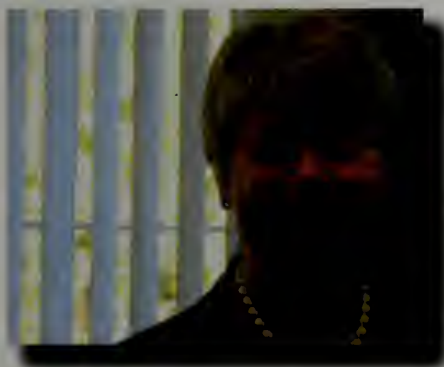

Over the past years as president of Eastern Nazarene College, I have learned a lot about this institution and its constant unwavering commitment to preparing students of all genders, ethnicities, and ages to lead and serve in an ever-changing world. It's a history that didn't just unfold, but one that was planned and prayed for, a winning combination of action mixed with faith, hope, and love.

It took faith, hope, and love to build ENC, and it takes the same to complete a degree here. It is most definitely an act of faith: Faith that God will guide you down the right academic path. It's also an act of hope: Hope that you'll be able to parlay that education into job opportunities. But neither of these are done blindly - you have faith and hope that your ENC education has prepared you because you trust God, because you've seen what ENC has done for others, and because you know that you are a better person than when you first stepped foot on this campus. Where's the love? It's everywhere! The peace of God's love sustained you through these past four years of papers, tests, chapels, EMES, work schedules, athletics, study abroad programs, choir tours, dorm rooms, busy social lives, and internships!

This yearbook serves several functions. Right now it is a celebration tool for the most exciting, demanding, and rewarding four years of your lives. But in 20 years, it will be a tool to connect with fellow alumni, as ENC friendships are lifelong. Please take the time to flip through the pages and remember your days at ENC - the campus may look different in 20 years, but its mission will also remain the same. We will still believe in the power of a Christian education, and you are proof of that power.

In His name,

Corlis McGee, President

Remember

Staring at the snow dancing on the wind, on this cold night that seems to last forever,
I remember You.

Do You remember the look in my eyes the first day I came to see You?
Those juvenile eyes staring with uneasiness at all the unfamiliar faces scattered on the lawn.

The day was long,
Full of lines and papers and pictures marked by nervous laughter and moistened eyes
As goodbye kisses fell from the rear view mirror
You were there.

Do You remember me then?
My immaturity seems humorous now, how I pretended to have all the answers, walking tall, in clothes too big for my size, walking around you...walking just to walk, making sure I was seen - making sure my insecurity was not.

Do You remember when I found my first friend?
On a humid evening, enjoying the cookout, sitting away from the crowd outside Someone dared to come sit next to me.

We shared nervous laughter and that was how it began.

Do You remember my first love?
My silly little smile revealing to all who passed that I was intoxicated by the notes left in my mailbox and the glances that took my breath away.

Do You remember when I found where I fit in?

The moment I knew who my best friends were?

The movies we watched over and over, the lines we quoted constantly?
Do You remember when I got the phone call that told me of loss in my family?
How I cried because I did not understand, how I changed because of change...

Do You remember my first practice, game, hit, win, loss?

How proud I was to put on those pinstripes, how nervous I was standing on the line for the national anthem.

Do You remember my failures?

All those times I fell short, all the times I was disappointed and I disappointed,
All the times when my fears of the future got the best of me?

Do you remember all the things I did when I was with You?

Do you remember how You changed me?

How You made me who I am this day as I stand here a few short moments from saying goodbye?

Will You remember me when I'm gone?

Staring at the snow dancing on the wind on this cold night that seems to last forever,
I remember You.

Dear Senior Class:

I am so impressed by the talent, commitment and drive this class has demonstrated while at ENC. These demonstrations came in many shapes and forms. For many of you it was academics, for many others it was athletics, ministries and leadership roles on campus; for all of you, a Christ-like servant heart that saw a need and met the need as best as possible. I hope all of you continue to honor Christ in your workplace and display the same pursuit of excellence you have shown your professors, parents, mentors and friends. Remember the journey and remember to thank those on the sidelines that helped you along.

Four years at ENC has taught me many things. One of them is that my best efforts at eloquent phrases are always shadowed by someone else's superior mastery of the English language. Here is what I want to tell you:

"Life is an opportunity, benefit from it.

Life is beauty, admire it.

Life is bliss, taste it.

Life is a dream, realize it.

Life is a challenge, meet it.

Life is a duty, complete it.

Life is a game, play it.

Life is a promise, fulfill it.

Life is sorrow, overcome it.

Life is a song, sing it.

Life is a struggle, accept it.

Life is a tragedy, confront it.

Life is an adventure, dare it.

Life is luck, make it.

Life is too precious, do not destroy it.

Life is life, fight for it."

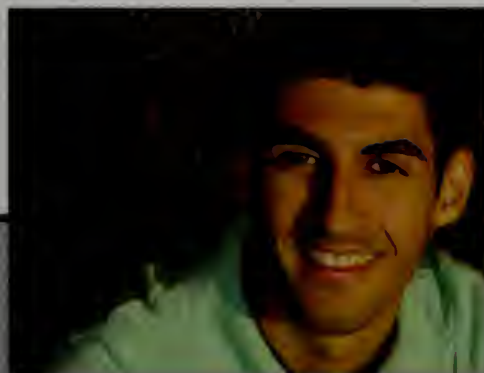

~ Mother Teresa

summer ministries

Being on a summer min. team was such an awesome experience. I had five wonderful, talented teammates who I could joke around with and I also could turn to them for encouragement, spiritual advice, comfort, etc. They were with me in the laughter and good times, and they were there with me when I was upset and going through a difficult time due to my grandmother's death. I was truly blessed with amazing teammates! And there are so many other great things about summer ministry. Not many other people have the opportunity to be a positive influence and to make a huge impact on hundreds of kids, teenagers, and adults' lives week after week for three months. It's a huge responsibility when you think about it but if you're putting God at the center of everything you do and giving Him the glory and honor for everything, then He will guide and direct you and give you the tools you need to further His kingdom. I will be traveling again this summer with the sweetest teammates ever. I love them! I'm so excited because I know God has amazing things in store for our team!!

Publications board

The Publications Board is comprised of the editors from the Campus Camera and the Nautilus, the Board chairperson, the advisors for the publications, a representative from the Student Development Office, the Student Government Association's Vice President of Finance, and student representatives. This year, the Board met frequently to update their Constitution, improve each publication, and provide timely feedback for the Campus Camera.

chamber singers

The Chamber Singers is a group of 24 students who focus on songs that emphasize skill and musical ability while glorifying God through their ministry to others. This past January they took an international tour, traveling to Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Austria, and Switzerland, singing for various churches and interacting with the people there. The group seeks to interlace a love for difficult choral music with a love for Christ and is directed by Dr. Timothy Shetler.

gospel choir

"One of the things I've always enjoyed about being a part of Gospel Choir is the fact that we play and sing music we love, while worshipping God and leading others in worship as well. In being a part of the band for two years, I've had the privilege of standing in the back and watching the spirit move across entire congregations. It's been an incredibly uplifting experience."

"I had the privilege of being captain of the team for 2008 and the athletes I ran with were great friends and runners. I can always feel God's holiness when I run and that is what I want ENC to know: Athletics is worship to God."

-Chris Reilly

"We had a brand new team this year. I was the only returning runner, and couldn't have had a better senior season getting to know this great group of girls! It was so encouraging to see each teammate improve so much over the season and I am so excited to see what can happen with seven women on a mission to recruit and train for next season!"

"This season was the best that we have had in the four years I have been here. Being able to make the playoffs in my last year and go out with a bang was amazing! Over these four years, the games I've played and the friends I've made have changed my life and given me memories I will have forever. To all my seniors, I love you!"

Breathe: you are alive

Taconic Retreat and Conference Center, also known as Camp Taconic, in Milan, NY hosted the first ever Breathe Retreat for ENC students. Sam Stovall, executive director of the camp, gave the students who worked as his summer staff the opportunity to plan the event. Without hesitation, planning and prayer began among the group, so that in October the weekend was a success. Though the beginning of the lice break out on campus gave the retreat a rough start, the 60 students who were able to attend had a blast.

We began the first night with a bonfire and some fellowship. The next morning consisted of an early breakfast and prayer. We also rolled up our sleeves and did some community service work by staining the cabins. This was probably the most fun part of the retreat as people sang songs, joked around, and just got to know each other a little bit better. The rest of the day consisted of worshipping God through our free time. Some people played football on the field, others hung around the gym to shoot hoops and some played guitar and sang worship together. Later that night we had our first service with Sam Stovall as our speaker. We learned a lot about "breathing" and what that means in biblical terms. Sunday morning was our wrap up, where we had a communion service and gave out t-shirts. Overall, the weekend was a blessing with God transcending through every part. It brought a portion of our school together and, God willing, it will not be the last time.

festival of lice

Lice Week lasted only a week, but it felt like so much longer to those affected by the pests. Many a trip was made to CVS to buy special shampoo. Students stayed up late washing hair and doing laundry into the wee hours of the morning. Floors had hair-combing parties in a valiant effort to rid the campus of the pests. Classes were cancelled, replaced with lice forums and head checks that lasted for hours at a time. Girls walked around with their heads wrapped in hats and scarves. Student Development let us use the washers and dryers for free...

Eventually, however, we regained normalcy. But we will always remember Lice Week 2008.

flag football

The 2008-2009 flag football season was a big hit this fall semester! The women's league went on to battle with many great match ups. The standouts for the women were Annie Latouche, Hanna Rauchfuss, and Kayla Overly. The championship team for the women was Skull Crushers, repeating the championship from last year! For the men, the competition was at an intense level all year, right down to the championship with team Ruthless taking the victory! Standouts for that team include the quarter back, with more than 50 touchdown passes, Josh Daniels. Other key players were Juan Rivera and Pat Lane.

poverty week

was the result of a vision conceived by Students for Social Justice in the spring of 2008, after they attended and were inspired by the Faith and International Development Conference held at Calvin College. SSJ co-leader Ashley Jardim organized the week of events with the help of a diverse group of students, staff, and faculty. The overall mission of Poverty Week was to engage the student body in seriously considering their responsibility to care for the "least of these," while also providing students with practical ways to act on what they would learn. The result was a week that began with the invitation to sleep outside in cardboard boxes and eat only one meal a day, experiencing just the slightest hint of what poverty might actually feel like. Fair Trade was one of the main themes of the week, highlighted by a showing of the documentary The Price of Sugar to both environmental destruction and poverty. Other events held throughout the week included a showing of the film The 11th Hour, followed by a discussion about poverty and global warming; a student action fair that provided opportunities for students to get involved in their local community; and a dinner discussion led by Professor Griffin, Dr. Randall Stevens and Dr. Cameron about the Presidential candidates and their views on poverty. - Ashley May Jardim

Sacred Passage

Four years, particular years, rush to enter the storeroom.
Today's air is tinged with salt,
the sea at the end of the street.

Keys to the kingdom,
passed.
Knowledge, its keen-edged shimmer,
glistens in the eyes

of those who will cross May's stage.
Receive the doublet scroll: blessing
and burden;
both

puzzle and paradox
of faith, of life well-wrought.
Sweet season of gathering...
the vine is full, harvest-in-hand.

making history: presidential election 2008

Much to the relief of pundits and major news network producers everywhere, 2008 brought with it America's 56th presidential election. While the number itself might seem dull and forgettable, the election was anything but. This was the battle of Republican Senator John McCain and Democratic Senator Barack Obama, the battle of Maverick and "Change We Can Believe In." Despite that fact that one sounds like a pilot from Top Gun while the other may have been a rejected track from a Journey album, both proved to be worthy contenders to the throne... er, Oval Office.

The race was spirited. Slogans were slung, voting records were scrutinized, American flag pins were forgotten (how unpatriotic!), and the issues were debated at numerous, well, debates. For both sides, the vice presidents seemed to be the X factors. McCain chose Alaskan governor Sarah Palin, whose spunk, stylish pant suits, and ability to see foreign nations from afar gave the Republican ticket some much needed energy and attention. The Democrats went a different route, choosing Delaware senator Joe Biden, whose storied Congress background came across in his speeches, wrinkles, and white hair, and who served a perfect foil to the young Obama.

America seemed to care about the election process once again. Citizens both young and old took to the streets to promote their candidate of choice. Blogs overflowed with commentary both civil and vitriolic. News networks framed the election as a critical turning point for America. Sensationalist, yes, but perhaps true as well. We were, after all, voting for a completely new presidency, and both sides promised change for a tired and weary America.

In the end, it was Senator Obama who stood victorious as our country's first African-American President. One could hardly envy him. Along with the presidency he inherited a laundry list of problems that would make the most stoic leader turn tail and run. He had an economy to rescue, an increasingly unpopular war to resolve, and a world quite vocal about their opinion of America. As a final surprise on election night, America was able to go to sleep knowing who their next Commander in Chief would be, as McCain, graciously, conceded early, sparing the country hours of pollsters flipping coins and calling it "predictions."

As President Obama faces new challenges for America, we can only hope those same legions of supporters who raised their signs and typing fingers in favor of change will stick with their new leader. For those who kindly (or unkindly) disagreed, we should hope for the same response. Change may yet come to America, but, like anything worthwhile, it will take more than the work of one man to accomplish.

dedication

Philip LaFountain joined the United States Air Force for six years as an enlisted non-commissioned officer. He was trained in electronics as a television studio technician. His responsibilities were to set up and run a television-recording studio. After three years he was trained as a weather specialist. This is where he spent most of his time recording weather data and learning to be a weather forecaster. LaFountain earned the Air Force Commendation medal for meritorious service.

While LaFountain was in the United States Air Force he made a commitment to follow Jesus Christ. He felt called to prepare for full-time ministry, either as a pastor or a teacher. LaFountain was honorably discharged from the Air Force in 1981, which is when he decided to enroll in the religion program at ENC. He graduated cum laude with a degree in religion in 1985. While he was studying at ENC, he worked as a youth minister at the Neponset Community Church.

After graduating from ENC, LaFountain enrolled in Nazarene Theological Seminary and graduated cum laude in 1991 with a Masters of Divinity. While he was in Kansas City, he worked at an antique store restoring and refining antique furniture for six years. When he finished seminary training, he returned to New England to work on a doctoral degree at Boston University.

In 1993, LaFountain was hired by Cambridge Institute to setup and administer an inner-city ministerial training program for pastors in and around Boston. In 1997, he decided to leave the Cambridge Institute and begin pastoring at the Emmanuel Church of the Nazarene in Pawtucket, RI.

Professor LaFountain believes ENC is a special school. Ever since he graduated he always had a heart to return to ENC. While he was at Boston University, he received a call from Dr. Al Truesdale, the interim president, inviting him to teach at the college. LaFountain's favorite class to teach is Philosophical Quest. He enjoys teaching this course because he has a deep love for philosophy and desires everyone to live intentionally.

"I get to meet so many students. Since it is a general education course I have students from all the disciplines, and I enjoy this rich and dynamic experience," LaFountain said. He also enjoys the seriousness in the faculty, administration, and students about following Jesus Christ.

One of LaFountain's favorite experiences is riding his motorcycle, which is a 1100cc Honda Shadow. He also enjoys hiking and canoeing with his wife, Rhodora, and spending time with his children.

"Prof. Severson is an encouraging influence and wonderful counselor." Jonathan Bohall

"Prof. LaFountain has been like a father to me and the rest of his students." Bryan Killen

"Prof. Severson challenges students to have their own opinions and also accepts who they are unconditionally. He's always willing to listen to students with compassion. We need more of that on campus."
Laura Doane

Professor Severson graduated from Northwest Nazarene University in 1996 with a degree in Theological Studies. He then continued his schooling at Nazarene Theological Seminary for a Masters of Divinity graduating in 2000. Prior to being a professor at ENC, he was a pastor for seven years in Grandview, Missouri. Ever since college he knew he wanted to be a professor.

"I realized that my professors were making a living doing things I considered fun. From then on, I was pretty determined to eventually become a college professor," Severson said.

Severson started his career as a professor at the college while he was working on his PhD at Boston University. Living Issues, a general education course taken by students senior year, has become Severson's favorite course to teach.

"I really consider it a great honor to meet ENC's seniors on the final stage of their education here. Academically, I'm most interested in the intersection between the philosophical study of responsibility and a world riddled with suffering. Living Issues allows me to see the complexity of responsibility, the diversity of our students and their experiences, and their deep desire to make a difference in the world." He has taught the course almost 20 times and still does not grow weary of the topics.

Severson enjoys the small campus atmosphere. He also enjoys hiking, running, playing with his children, and fixing up his house.

Tori,

You are so many things, but the best is that you are my daughter! I love you! Your name Victoria comes from the Latin for "victory," and when I chose your name I had no idea how much it would apply to so many areas of your life. I think the last descriptive word I will add to the list will be "victorious" and it will be the one for your future. You can be victorious in whatever path you choose. I pray that you stand firm on your foundations. Follow the path where the Lord leads and you will always have victory and find the desires of your heart. Congratulations! Love, Mom

I have three favorite quotes:

"Life has been your art. You have set yourself to music. Your days are your sonnets." ~ Oscar Wilde

"I long to accomplish great and noble tasks, but it is my chief duty to accomplish humble tasks as though they were great and noble." ~ Helen Keller

"When I stand before God at the end of my life, I would hope that I would not have a single bit of talent left, and could say, 'I used everything you gave me.'" ~ Erma Bombeck

These quotes are all by influential people that the general public considers important. These individuals are all different. One an author, one a political activist, and one a humorist; yet, they all have similar messages. Take life by the hand and walk with it, using everything you have in every situation you encounter.

My life may not be as importantly influential as the people these quotes belong to, but it is my sincere hope that my life positively impacts every person I come into contact with. I hope this yearbook helps to exemplify this desire.

I could not have done so well without the help of several key people: Carissa, Andrew, Marie, my family, and countless other individuals. I owe everything and more to my Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, the Author and Perfecter of my faith, the One who calls me His poem and His masterpiece.

Thank you for holding my hand while I learned how to hold life's hand.

In Him,
Erica Scott McGrath (09)

Dear friends,
This year has been, if nothing else, eventful. It has been a privilege to not only experience those events with all of you, but to also try and capture them in this book. I know that not every person or memory has been recorded in these pages, but hopefully this yearbook can serve as both a keepsake and a challenge to remember these college years.

This book would not have been possible without the help of so many people. Thank you for all of your support, prayers, coffee runs, and visits to the office. Seniors – you will be missed more than you know. God bless you, class of 2009!
